20th Manfred Lachs Space Law Moot Court Competition

The 20th Manfred Lachs Space Law Moot Court competition will be held during the Cape Town IISL colloquium. The Problem for 2011 is titled the "Case concerning Environmental Contamination and Harmful Interference in Space Activities (Zuris v. Nova Freedonia)."

For the regional round in Europe, 8 teams registered, and the competition was held at the Saint Petersburg State University, Russian Federation, on April 28-29. For the North American round, 11 teams registered and the competition was held at the Georgetown Law School, USA, on April 16. For the Asia-Pacific Round, 24 teams registered and the competition was held at the Universitas Pelita Harapan, Indonesia, 3-5 June. The competition was preceded by a conference on outer space law. It was decided to continue for the time being with alternating locations for the round, and the 2012 Asia Pacific Round will be held in Hyderabad, India and will again be combined with a conference. Mr. Jason Bonin has decided to step down as regional organizer, and the IISL thanks him for his hard work and successful effort in organizing the round and a conference of excellent quality. The new regional organizer for the Asia Pacific region is Dr. Yuri Takaya, assisted by Dr. V. Gopalakrishnan. More information is available at the dedicated moot court website:

<http://www.iislweb.org/lachsmoot/asia-pacific.html>

There has been a continuous effort from the President the past few years to have African and Latin America regional rounds. The IISL is proud and pleased that with the help of the Moot Court Committee and our members Angeline Oprong and Timiebi Aaganaba, Kenya, Nigeria and South Africa will participate in the African Introductory round, which will take place during the Cape Town IISL Colloquium. Concrete plans to formalise the new African Regional round will be discussed in Cape Town.

For the time being, it was decided to include the schools from Latin America in the North American Round until the Institute is ready to launch the Latin America round; Colombia participated in the North American round this year.

The original 'Lachs Trophy', after having been partly lost last year, has been restored and placed on permanent display near the ICJ offices at the Peace Palace in The Hague. An exact replica of the Trophy will be present at each World Finals but will no longer travel around the world with the winning team. The Sterns and Tennen award for Best Oralist, the Eilene M. Galloway Award for Best Brief and the Lee Love Award for the winning team, as well as various plaques and certificates will be awarded.

The names of all participating universities, as well as the Judges of the written briefs, of the semi finals and of the finals will be listed in the Moot Court Brochure that will be made available in Cape Town.

The IISL is most grateful to JAXA, ECSL and the Secure World Foundation for their substantive efforts to sponsor the regional winners to attend the IAC. We are also thankful for funding and other support received from the South African Department of Trade and Industry and other South African sponsors, as well as the IAF.

The IISL is very grateful to the Moot Court Committee, led by co-chairs Dr. Mejía-Kaiser and Dr. Tennen, for their tireless efforts in safeguarding and strengthening the excellent reputation of the competition, which will celebrate its 20th anniversary in Cape Town.

55th Colloquium in Naples, Italy
1 – 5 Oct. 2012

Session Program

Note: Members interested in any rapporteur position should contact the Executive Secretary before December 2011.

Abstracts must only be submitted online before 29 Feb. 2012 (see www.iafastro.org).

1. Nandasiri Jasentuliyana Keynote Lecture on Space Law & 4th Young Scholars Session

In the first part of this session, the IISL will invite a prominent speaker to address the members of the Institute and other congress attendants on a highly topical issue of broad interest. The second part of this session will be especially dedicated to the space lawyers of the future, in that young scholars (under 35 years old) are invited to present a paper on "Space Law – Future Challenges and Potential Solutions" but the IISL is also open to other topics. All young scholars should only submit for the young scholars session, even if their paper addresses a topic of one of the other sessions, otherwise they will not be considered for acceptance.

Co-chairs: Mrs. Tanja Masson-Zwaan, Prof. Elisabeth Back Impallomeni

2. The Interaction between Private International Law and Space Law and its Impact on Commercial Space Activities

Many current day space activities are undertaken by private commercial entities. Indeed, Article VI of the Outer Space Treaty already contemplated that 'non-governmental entities' would carry out space activities, albeit with the responsibility for such activities remaining with States. As the range of private commercial space activities has rapidly expanded, and the 'industries' that many of them have created represent many billions of dollars, a variety of legal issues arise that require careful thought. Not only are the United Nations Space Law Treaties of relevance, but private law, either on a multilateral or bilateral basis, plays an important role in the regulation of such activities. This session invites contributions that discuss how private law impacts upon, and is influenced by the broader range of international space law rules. Reference may be made to the draft Protocol to the Cape Town Convention on Matters specific to Space Assets, prepared by a Unidroit Committee of governmental experts, due to be finalised at a diplomatic Conference to be held in Berlin from 27 February to 9 March 2012, or to the plethora of contractual, regulatory and national law rules that are relevant to the regulation of private space activities.

Co-chairs: Mr. Martin Stanford, Prof. Paul Larsen

3. The International Legal Regulation of Outer Space within the Scope of Public International Law

Article III of the Outer Space Treaty confirms that activities in the exploration and use of outer space shall be carried out 'in accordance with international law', with specific reference to the Charter of the United Nations. Moreover, Space Law itself has developed as a branch of public international law. It is evident from the range of space activities that many aspects of public international law - including the Law of the United Nations Charter, International Environmental Law, International Trade Law, International Humanitarian Law, International Human Rights Law - are relevant to the conduct of such activities. These may be through either Treaties or customary law, and it is important to understand how these areas of public international law interact. This session invites contributions that address this interaction, including the difficulties that might be associated with simply attempting to apply existing international law principles developed terrestrially, without any adaptation, to the unique environment of outer space.

Co-Chairs: Prof. Stephan Hobe, Mr. Jean-François Mayence,

4. Legal Evidence from Outer Space

Modern societies and their legal systems increasingly rely on technological tools and pieces of evidence to help the enforcement and application of domestic and international law. Space brings valuable and accurate information in the form of precise timing, satellite positioning, land mapping used for building permits, environmental control of pollution, management of maritime traffic and many other growing applications. Several courts and public enforcement officers have already used satellite data and derived information for decisions in many areas. International environmental agreements include space data as an objective mean to control treaty obligations. Papers will be invited to focus on the case law and on the legal solutions available for lawyers, governments and legislators to take benefit of available space technology at the service of jurisdictions.

Co-Chairs: Dr. Marco Ferrazzani, Mr. Ray Purdy

5. Recent Developments in Space Law

In this session, papers are invited to address legal aspects of the most recent developments in space activities that have taken place since the other session topics were determined, i.e. since March 2012 only.

Co-chairs: Mrs. Corinne Jorgenson, Dr. Ranjana Kaul

27th IAA-IISL Scientific/Legal Roundtable

Topic: "Optical Communication." The Round Table will address technical development and regulatory aspects of optical communication such as frequencies and protection from interception during data transmission.

Chairs: K-U. Schrogl, W. Mendell, Rapporteur: N. Rohner-Willsch.

“Policy and Law of Human Space Missions”
Chairs: Mr. Cristian Bank, Lesley Jane Smith, Rapporteur: Luise Weber-Steinhaus.

Manfred Lachs' 'The Law of Outer Space'

On the occasion of its 50th anniversary, the IISL republished the book by former IISL President Judge Manfred Lachs, “The law of outer space, an experience in contemporary law-making”, see <http://www.brill.nl/law-outer-space>.

Young Scholars book “New perspectives on space law”

The Proceedings of the 2nd Young Scholars session held in Prague in 2010 have been published in a separate book to commemorate the IISL's 50th anniversary. The publication has been facilitated by ISRO and edited by Mark Sundahl and V. Gopalakrishnan, and will be presented in Cape Town.

NEW: add your profile to the members website

As has been reported before, the IISL website has been expanded with an online members database (www.iislweb.net), where members can verify and update their personal data, and register for IISL events. This new tool has now been further improved with the possibility for each member to upload a profile and photo, indicating areas of interest, main publications etc. As soon as a member has uploaded a profile, access is given to all other profiles that have been uploaded. This will allow members to contact each other, interact and network, and will further improve the services of the IISL to its members. If you have any questions about this new feature, please contact us as secretary@iislweb.org.

Social Media

The IISL is active on LinkedIn and Facebook and encourages you to join us there for up-to-date news and to liaise with colleagues and friends from the IISL community.

On LinkedIn, we admit only members to the group (currently 70). On Facebook, we have 2 pages, one IISL page and one Mootcourt page, each of which has between 200-260 ‘fans’.

Please help us keep these pages ‘lively’ by sharing news, activities, publications, events etc.

Members survey

In order to find out what concerns our members have about a wide range of issues, the IISL has conducted an online survey among the members. The survey consisted of about 50 questions, and the results will be very helpful in shaping the future of the Institute. The results have been distributed to the members and we would like to express our thanks to those who have responded.

IISL Committees

The IISL Standing Committee on the Status of International Agreements relating to activities in Outer Space continues its useful work. Dr. A. Terekhov chairs the standing Committee.

The Reports of this committee are published in the Proceedings of the Colloquia and on the website of the Institute.

Last year, the Executive Secretary invited all members to participate in the various IISL committees. All the committees are up and running and if you are interested in joining any of the IISL committees or have questions, please email secretary@iislweb.org.
